Not illustrated. 1919 edition. Excerpt: . Ill Still thinking of Kayding, I returned to my letter and rattled off something about him which on re-reading wouldn't do; it sounded like a slur. He was not easy to describe with anything like adequacy, and why describe him at all, to Katherine? My letter I have called a plea, but of course one could not go on that tack with her; one had to be prepared for her humor. Dithyrambs about the place--that would not do either. In short, my pen in writing this letter traveled a narrow path, and I was but feebly interested, when the men came home, with their haul of driftwood which looked as if it might last all winter. There was a message Kayding had left for my fisherman which I had transferred to paper lest we forget. I handed him the paper: Chinaman's Rock for pompanos, but not till after this surf goes down. And then I went out upon my usual beat, old wheel-tracks worn in the coarse grass and sand that already I had made into a path along the first bench above us. Eastward rose the moors, dark, wind-slanted grass against the sky, reminding one of Jane Eyre's drawing and Rochester's question, Who taught you to draw wind? Night was coming on in thickening gray, not a gleam of sunset; but punctual to the hour when the bugles used to sound retreat, Pigeon Point Light flared...
