To offer some other considerations which should dissuade men from using Tobacco. 6. To indicate the methods of promoting a cure of the Tobacco habit. I. Medicinal Properties. What are the medicinal powers of Tobacco? This question is easily answered, as none of its properties are obscure. On every system not accustomed to its use, they declare themselves as the sin of Sodom. Neither has there ever been any dispute among medical men, as to what those medicinal properties are. Whatever medical authority we open, we find that Tobacco has certain diuretic powers attributed to it; that it is an emetic of great energy; that, in certain circumstances, it acts as a cathartic; but that its most prominent and powerful quality is the narcotic. The general effect of narcotics is to allay excitement and nervous irritation, to quiet restlessness, to diminish sensibility, relieve pain, and promote sleep. These effects are produced only by small doses....
